

ON THE STAGE

Betty Hale, who has become a permanent attraction at the Ziegfeld Frolic on the New Amsterdam Roof.
Photo by Pach.

Maxine Robinson is an attractive feature of "Tumble In," at the Selwyn Theatre.
Photo by White.

Ann Pennington, the ever-popular, who is scheduled to be a shining light of George White's "Scandals of 1919," opening soon at the Liberty Theatre.
© Hixon-Connolly.

Doris Mitchell in "I Love You" at the Booth Theatre is not at all difficult to gaze upon.
Photo, Charlotte Fairchild.

Bee Palmer, who is one of the beauties in the aerial Ziegfeld show, has an interesting profile.
Photo, Campbell Studios.

Pinna Nesbit in "Bolshevism on Trial." Miss Nesbit, who has returned to the cinema temporarily, is the wife of Major Frederic Cruger.

Jessica Brown, who dances for a living, varies her regular stage engagements by performing for war charities.